WITHDRAWAL OF AMERICAN TROOPS UP TO PRESIDENT

Mexican Expedition Has Not Slightest Chance of Capturing Villa, Dead or Alive, is Admission of Army Officers on Border—Bandit Master Over Carranza?

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

San Antonio, April 22.—With President Wilson alone rests the question of withdrawing American troops from Mexico or ordering the hunt for Francisco Villa continued. This was made clear here today following a preliminary conference between Major General Scott and Major General Funston. Neither of these army officers, it was learned, has the authority to act.

On his return to Washington General Scott will report to Secretary of War Baker the result of his visit to the border. The secretary will in turn advise the president of Scott's visit and the president will then decide what is to be done.

To Mark Time Ten Days.

The first conference between Scott and Funston lasted until early this morning. They went over in a general way a report from Gen. Pershing showing the positions of the troops now in Mexico but consideration of the detailed information was put over until today's meeting. Ten days probably will elapse before the decision of the government is known. In the meantime there will be no action by Pershing's force unless attacked.

OFFICERS PREDICT U. S. WITHDRAWAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

El Paso, Tex., April 22.—American army officers in El Paso admitted today for the first time that the expedition sent into Mexico has not the slightest chance of taking Villa dead or alive. They foresee the withdrawal of the United States troops.

It has developed that there was more truth than fiction in the Carranzistas' claims that the Chihuahua-Durango boundary was the deadline for the advance of the American troops. None of the American soldiers has crossed this line. To the south of it, in the state of Durango, Villa is strengthening his forces with each passing hour.

To the north of it the American forces are resting on their arms awaiting the result of the conference between Major Scott and Major General Funston at San Antonio.

To Fight Both Forces.

If it were decided to continue the hunt for the bandit chieftain, the task would be made much more difficult by the opportunity that has been given Villa to gain fresh recruits and supplies of ammunition. Officers on the border also believe that the American troops would have to fight the Carranzistas as well as the Villistas now.

Reports reaching the border today brought the information that Villa had undertaken an ambitious plan, namely, the overthrow of the present de facto government and the establishing of himself as the dominant figure in Mexico affairs. His secret envoys have approached many prominent Carranzistas leaders, already weakening in their allegiance to the "First Chief," and pointed out to them that the natives of Mexico will rally to his standard because he not only defied but defeated the efforts of the entire United States army.

Carranza Shy of Cash.

Those who know the Mexican mind say that Villa's argument is a plausible one. If he could win over the Carranzistas forces of northern Mexico and secure their ammunition, he would be able to inaugurate a strong campaign for mastery. Other reports affirm that Carranza's difficulties are increasing at Mexico City and assert that he is preparing to flee to Vera Cruz where he will establish headquarters and prepare to flee by sea if he is overthrown.

Carranza's failure to get financial support has militated against his gaining complete control in Mexico. Four days ago his government boasted that in Mexico City its money had the value of five cents on the dollar. The next day it dropped to three cents in Chihuahua and now it is two cents.

Inspired reports that fresh government securities were on deposit in New York city failed to check the slump.

Fresh Outbreaks Reported. After May 1 all duties and taxes must be paid in gold. It is said that the three leading banks of Mexico have combined to force the government to repudiate its own currency. No Mexican government can stand without financial support.

All along the American line of communication in Mexico where the soldiers keep up their grind of work despite the inactivity of the field forces, come reports of fresh outbreaks of Villa and Diaz bands. Picked by certain wealthy inter-

ALL MOBILE ARMY IS WITH FUNSTON

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 22.—The future of the Mexican expedition to capture Villa depends altogether upon reports awaited from Major General Hugh Scott, now in consultation with Major General Funston at San Antonio. As chief of staff of the army and, to use Secretary Baker's own phrase, "the eyes of the war department," General Scott will recommend the course to pursue, officials today admitted for the first time, and General Scott will report whether, with the present force in Mexico, it is possible to run down the bandit leader.

If, in his judgment, Villa has gone so far into the interior as to make his capture an impossibility, but one course remains open—the withdrawal of the American troops from Mexico.

No More Men Available.

There is no present indication that more troops will be sent into Mexico. In fact there are no more available. All of the mobile army, except three thousand or four thousand men already at General Funston's command.

In view of the critical situation facing this country in its relations with Germany, it would be worse than a military blunder, in the opinion of army officers, to strip the coast fortifications of their artillerymen. Earlier the conversion of the coast artillery into infantry for Mexican service had been relied upon as a resource for reinforcements. For reasons all too obvious that idea now has been abandoned.

Villa Far in the Lead.

Two important factors are influencing the administration in determining the future of the expedition. First, it had been thought the pursuit and capture of Villa would be accomplished in quick time. Six weeks have since elapsed. Villa now is far in the lead of his pursuers. General Pershing's column today is strung out more than 400 miles over Mexico and nine-tenths of his men are employed in maintaining communications, leaving only a handful for real work. The expedition now is at a standstill. It can go no further in its present strength.

First Chief's Indifference.

More serious yet is the hostile attitude of General Carranza and his chiefs. Earlier and still with some reservations, the expedition was described as co-operative. Now the reports show that the only co-operation from Carranza's forces has been indifference. Any activity has been decidedly hostile, even to the extent of an ambush of the American troops at Parral. Carranza's refusal of the use of the railroads was, of course, the main obstacle. This necessitated the maintenance of the motor truck line and the diversion of the bulk of the troops from the actual pursuit of Villa.

FAIR WEATHER IS PROMISED EASTER

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 22.—No eleventh hour change in the weather is going to disappoint persons eagerly awaiting the national Easter parade tomorrow. This was the assurance given today by weather forecaster Bowie.

The weather office sticks to the prediction of yesterday that fair weather will prevail throughout the United States, with the exception of the eastern section close to the Canadian border. From Boston west through New York to San Francisco the weather will be fair. Buffalo, Cleveland and Chicago will find the day cloudy. South of the Mason and Dixon line the fair weather will be unbroken.

Plunger's New Record.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

St. Louis, April 22.—D. V. A. Smith, of the Illinois A. C., today holds the world's record for a 75-foot plunge. He plunged the distance in 50 1-5 seconds, breaking the former record of 52 seconds made five years ago.

TESTIMONY TAKEN IN $6,000 CLAIM

The auditing committee of the common council on Friday evening at the city hall heard considerable testimony in the claim of Mrs. Cecilia B. O'Reilly against the city of Kingston to recover $6,000. The claimant was represented by Judge N. Frank O'Reilly with Judge Van Etten of counsel, while the city was represented by Corporation Counsel Brinnier and Mayor Canfield. Mrs. O'Reilly claims that in 1911 the city, through its mayor, then Roscoe Irwin, agreed to cancel the Andrew street assessment against the property of Mrs. O'Reilly if she would allow the city to take crushed stone from a portion of her property on Mary's avenue and also to allow a right of way from the westerly side of that avenue to the Jewish cemetery. This agreement, she claims, was satisfactory to her and she gave her consent. Former Mayor Irwin denies the allegations and a letter he had written to Mr. Brinnier was read at the hearing.

Among those who testified at the hearing were Mrs. O'Reilly, Judge O'Reilly, former City Engineer Hallinan and former Street Superintendent James V. Simpson. The auditing committee will later submit its report to the common council on what action shall be taken in the matter.

JUDGE HASBROUCK WRITES A LETTER

The membership campaign which is being conducted by the Social Service Bureau this week and next, is making a large number of people understand what advantage the bureau is to the members themselves as well as to the poor.

On Monday Judge Hasbrouck, president of the bureau, and its most enthusiastic booster, will send out a personal letter to a number of Kingston people who have not yet joined, and whose membership would be valued.

This letter will explain clearly why $1 invested in organized charity work is the best investment that a charitably inclined person could possibly make.

You who are reading this have read all about it in the paper, now get some individual opinions about this organization.

Get the opinion of people whose judgement you value. Ask Mayor Canfield about it. Talk to Admiral Higginson. If you meet Nick Murphy on the street, stop him and get his ideas on social service. Ask Major Chandler a few questions, step into Sam Bernstein's store, talk to Everett Fowler. And oh, if you get a chance, do stop and get Mrs. MacMillan started! If you can talk with any of these people and then stay out of the Social Service Bureau, you'll never give anything to anybody.

Only $1 and please send it to the Municipal Building (Of course you can send more than $1 if you like. They'll be tickled to death.)

SEARCHED CELLAR NEAR WEST POINT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 22.—Police Inspector Faurot announced today that the clue given by a Rhode Island convict as to the disappearance of Dorothy Arnold several years ago had failed to solve the mystery. The inspector admitted that he and a squad of men had searched the cellar of a house near West Point, but declared that he had found no trace of Miss Arnold's body.

FORD LOSES NEBRASKA LEAD.

Senator Cummins 300 Ahead of Filiver Favorite in Primary.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Omaha, Neb., April 22.—With complete returns in from about one-half the counties in the state, Henry Ford has lost his lead for the Republican presidential nomination to Senator Albert B. Cummins. The count today stood Cummins 14,527; Ford, 14,304; Hughes, 7,726; Estabrook, 4,955.

The adherents of former Secretary of State Bryan concede that he is defeated for delegate at large to the Democratic national convention.

AVIATOR THOMPSON LOOPING THE LOOP OVER NEW YORK.

DAIRY AVIATOR SHOWS NEW YORK VULNERABLE TO AEROPLANE ATTACKS.

Leaving a veritable Niagara of white fire in the night air from the trail of his aeroplane, the aviator who dropped fireworks bombs while looping the loop over Washington, performed the same feat over the lower part of New York city.

Thompson explained that his "stunt" was arranged and financed by prominent men, as a lesson for preparedness. He wished to show how easily a hostile aviator could fly over the metropolis and destroy prominent buildings by dropping bombs. In his flight he released fireworks bombs which sailed straight downward and exploded before striking the earth. One or two of them, Thompson said, would have destroyed the Customs House, had they been real bombs.

VON DER GOLTZ IS DEAD IN TURKEY

German Military Genius Sent to Berlin on Special Express Although Rumor Reports Assassination—Hit Ten Days, Says Berlin.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, April 22.—(By wireless.)—The following official statement was issued today by the German war office:

"Field Marshal von der Goltz died of spotted typhus on April 19 at the headquarters of his Turkish army after ten days' sickness."

Harmful to Germany.

London, April 22.—British military experts predicted today that the German influence in Turkey would be greatly decreased as a result of the death of Field Marshal Baron von der Goltz, which was announced in dispatches received here from Berlin this morning.

The Berlin messages differ as to the cause of the field marshal's death. One states he died of spotted fever. Another attributes his death to typhoid.

An Amsterdam report says it is rumored that Baron von der Goltz was shot by a Turkish soldier and died after suffering great agony for ten days. He expired at the headquarters of the First Turkish Army, of which he was the commander.

BRITAIN BLOCKS RED CROSS GOODS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 22.—Miss Mabel Boardman, head of the American Red Cross, today confirmed the report that Great Britain is not allowing shipments of Red Cross supplies to get through to Germany.

The last shipment sent by the Red Cross to Germany was made in January. Since that time, Miss Boardman said, the British government has not granted any permits to the Red Cross.

The state department was asked some time ago to ascertain why the British government is not permitting any more supplies to go to Germany. So far no answer has been received.

CRAFT RAN INTO A BRICK BUILDING

Steam Lighter Launched Friday Got Lost and Crashed into Structure on Island Dock—Boat Uninjured, But Building Was Damaged.

One of the freakiest accidents in a long time occurred on the Rondout creek on Friday when a large steam lighter was launched from the ways at Hiltbrandt's boatyard at South Rondout. The launching was a success, but no one counted on the speed of the boat which had never had a tryout, being newly built, and the lighter got away from the tug that was on hand to assist and dashed across the creek stern first and crashed into the Island Dock when the stern of the boat collided with the brick engine house on the dock and ripped off one corner of the building. The impact brought the lighter to a sudden stop and a line was thrown aboard from the tug and the lighter towed to the other side of the creek and tied up at the dock. It was found that the collision had not injured the boat at all, while the brick building was somewhat damaged.

LET SENATE FIGHT IT OUT.

Hopeless Deadlock in Committee.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 22.—The senate judiciary committee has become almost hopelessly deadlocked over the president's appointment of Louis D. Brandeis to the supreme court. Half a dozen meetings have failed to bring it any nearer a conclusion than at the start.

The advisability of laying the Brandeis nomination before the senate without recommendation of its committee is being considered by the committee. It would then be up to the senate to fight out the question in executive session.

Ye Editor's Sunday School Class.

There is nothing that occurs during the week that gives us so much pleasure as the hour spent with the boys in our Sunday School class. There are many things of interest to discuss in the lesson, as given in the book, and in the sermon that they have just heard, and the boys are so ready to give their opinions, when called on and their views are sometimes so different from those of the teacher that altogether there is nothing dull about the discussion. The class has been growing of late and there are now about a dozen members. But there is room for more and there is no age limit.—New Paltz Independent.

President at Capital.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

WESTINGHOUSE HAS STRIKE OF 13,000

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 22.—Joining hands at every entrance to the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company plant at East Pittsburgh today, strikers forced those who are still at work to break through the "hand chain" to enter the establishment. Only 4,000 employees of the plant are at work today. Thirteen thousand are on strike, 3,000 of them women and girls.

Fearful of bomb outrages the company has stationed watchmen at ten foot intervals all around the plant. All lunch boxes of men entering the works today were examined.

Saloon keepers in East Pittsburgh, by agreement with the authorities, did not open their places until a half hour after the doors had closed behind those who went to work today. At least 2,000 skilled workmen employed on war munition contracts and said to draw from $10 to $12 a day, are out, and in the tool-making department not a wheel was turned today. The present strike grew out of a demand by the tool makers that they be given ten hours pay for eight hours work. A strike of the tool makers five weeks ago was settled when the company granted a ten percent increase in pay and reduced the working day from ten to nine and three-quarters hours.

Spread to Springfield.

Springfield, Mass., April 22.—The trouble among the employees of the Westinghouse company which was developed in Pittsburgh extended to this city today when six hundred men at the East Springfield plant walked out. The men voted last night to strike unless the company agreed to their demands for better wages and working condition. This demand was refused today and the strike followed.

STUNNING METHOD OF TAKING TROUT

Hail Storm First Aid to Anglers in Mountains in Whose Streams Trout Lie in Common With Pursuing Piscators.

Long before the sun was due to peep over the horizon the exodus from Kingston to the trout streams of the mountains had begun and before the usual breakfast time had arrived many an unwary trout had left its native stream to be brought back to town and become part of an Easter dinner. Although dozens of Kingston's expert anglers left by train and automobile for their own favorite stream but few returned without a few fish and many big stories.

However, high up in the mountains the catches were exceptionally large and many of the more adventurous fishermen who were daring enough to brave the storm, which raged during the early morning returned with baskets well filled. In many cases baskets were not large enough, and bags and improvised containers were filled.

Kingston was visited by a slight hail storm but up in the mountains the storm was much more severe and hail stones fell as large as an egg and in some cases even larger. As the hail stones fell upon the waters, habited by the speckled beauties in such quantities there was little chance for them to escape and the effect was to stun the fish to such an extent that they lost their habitual caution and bit furiously upon worms, flies and bare hooks in some instances. One man who returned shortly before noon reported that after an hour's fishing he was so laden down with fish that he was compelled to give up the sport and make for home. Whether the game law permits this kind of slaughter of the fish is not positively known but one well known upstate fisherman after carefully reading the law several times stated that there was no provision as to what manner trout might be taken after they had been stunned by hail stones.

BOYS HEAR ABOUT FIRST AID.

Dr. Keator Gives Talk Before Half Hundred Scouts.

A meeting of the Boy Scouts was held at the Y. M. C. A. Friday evening at which time Dr. Frank Keator delivered an address on "First Aid" and also told the boys how to treat a fracture in various parts of the body and what to do in accident cases until the doctor arrives. The talk was listened to by nearly half a hundred boys and is one in a series which will be delivered at various times to the boys. More meetings will be held but final arrangements and speakers have not yet been decided upon. The talk last evening was of a very interesting nature and was closely followed by the boys in attendance.

SEVEN KILLED IN RUSSIAN FACTORY

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 22.—After an irregular opening the stock market again became nervous and unsettled, with the Mexican group directly influenced by the announcement made by the governor of Sonora forfeiting foreign franchises. Mexican Petroleum declined 2 1/2 to 97, Green Cananea a point to 45, and American Smelting 1 1/2 to 93 1/2.

The war order stocks continued to show an absence of support and new low records for the movement were made in those issues. Industrial Alcohol dropped 3 1/2 to 139 1/2, Studebaker 5 to 123, Crucible 1 1/2 to 80 1/2 and Baldwin Locomotive 2 to 88 1/2. Westinghouse continued its receding movement, falling 2 1/2 to 95 1/2.

The motor stocks were generally weak, Maxwell Motor declining 2 to 70 1/2 and Willys-Overland 4 points to 213.

Steel Common yielded 1/2 to 81 1/2 and fractional losses were sustained in the leading copper shares. General Electric declined 3 points to 160.

After sustaining further losses there was a vigorous demand for stocks at the low levels and some sharp upturns occurred with Marine preferred showing the greatest strength, selling at 74 1/2. Mexican Petroleum, which sold as low as 95, rallied to 96 and Industrial Alcohol after selling at 138, rose to 139. Anaconda, which closed Thursday at 82, sold at 79 1/2.

The market closed irregular. The market showed increased weakness in the last hour with bear raiders maintaining forcing speculative liquidation at the extreme low level. Lower prices were generally recorded in the last hour than had been reached in the early decline, but before the close a strong new demand and there was an inclination to regard the forced liquidation as virtually exhausted. Government bonds unchanged; other bonds heavy.

FOOTBALL AID TO MARTIAL FEELING

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Cincinnati, Ohio, April 22.—Football and other manly sports involving the element of combat and emotional excitement should be encouraged as preparation for war, Dr. Jesse F. Williams of Columbus University declared in a speech before the American Physical Education Association here today.

Dr. Williams said immemorial racial human forms of physical education, such as running, jumping, leaping and combat are indispensable in preparedness.

He continued: "From the standpoint of biology and ethnology, man, as Dr. Crite has said, has a 'kinetic' equipment for war, developed by the innumerable centuries during which he had to fight for his own life and the life of his mate and children. Now as civilization has more and more deprived man of the need to fight he has devoted more time and attention to the games which are substitutes for war in that they involve a vigorous struggle and in their sublimation offer an opportunity for the formation of habits and ideals of a kind which may effectively fight for personal and social ideals.

"It is important also to remember that these games approaching war, involving a large element of personal danger appeal most strongly to normal human instincts. There are those who see in football, even as those who see in war, only horrors and debasements. Such individuals are unable to see any values in the sacrifice of material interests for the sake of high ideals, of personal and individual elements for the good of the group.

Now games and athletic contests will give the essential virtues which may be achieved by war. Dr. Cannon of the department of physiology of Harvard University has shown from the standpoint of internal secretions and the emotions why games and athletics serve the body in the preservation of the warlike virtues. This scientific work on the physiological side shows how insufficient gymnastic drill is, because of its lack of the necessary emotional reinforcement."

MORE GOOD THINGS.

Cornmeal is a valuable food, being rich in fats and minerals.

Spider Corn Bread.—Mix together a cupful and an eighth of cornmeal and a half cupful of bread flour, a tablespoonful of sugar, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a fourth of a teaspoonful of salt; mix well, then add a cupful and a half each of sweet milk and a beaten egg. Add two tablespoonfuls of drippings into a hot frying pan and pour in the mixture. Bake in a moderate oven 30 minutes. Serve with jelly.

Cornmeal Crisps.—Mix together two cupfuls of cornmeal, two teaspoonfuls of salt; beat in gradually two cupfuls of boiling water, add two tablespoonfuls of oil or butter and spread an inch thick in a large dripping pan. Bake until crisp, about fifteen minutes. Cut in squares and serve as crackers.

Savory Mush.—Stir into a quart of mush a teaspoonful of sage or of poultry dressing. When ready to fry cut in slices and dip in flour, fry in a little hot bacon fat and serve with fried bacon at breakfast.

Popcorn Balls.—Boil a cupful of corn sirup with a tablespoonful of vinegar until it hardens in water. Pour over the corn while hot and butter the hands well before forming the balls.

Potato Pancakes.—To a cupful of cold mashed potato add a cupful of milk, mix until well blended. Sift together a half cupful of flour, a teaspoonful each of sugar and salt, unless the potatoes are already seasoned. A teaspoonful of baking powder, beat well, then add a tablespoonful of melted butter, beat again hard and long.

Crumble Torte.—Take a cupful of sugar, a tablespoonful of flour, two well-beaten eggs, one cupful of pecans, a cupful of dates; both puts and dates cut fine, a tablespoonful of baking powder, all mixed well and bake slowly in a shallow pan, or in two layers. Put together with sweetened and flavored whipped cream. Bake a half hour.

His Own Hands.

A fashionable painter, noted for his prolific output, was discussing at a studio tea in New York a recent scandal in the picture trade.

"Look here, old man," said a noted etcher, "do you paint all your own pictures?"

"And what do you pay your hands?" the etcher inquired. "I'm thinking of starting an art factory myself."

A Fine Distinction.

A small boy in the village school when writing a composition on "Quakers" wound up by saying, "Quakers never quarrel, never get into a fight, never claw and never scratch." Then he added, "Paw is a Quaker, but I really don't think paw is."

"FOUND" A SATCHEL HOLDING $400,000

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Baltimore, April 22.—Stoutly declaring that he found the satchel containing $400,000 worth of certificates which had been stolen from a New York ferryboat on February 26 last, on the train while on his way from New York to New Orleans, Edward H. Quigley, 36, who says he lives in New York but belongs at Ridgefield Park, N. J., arrested by the Baltimore police as he left a train at Union Station, was questioned at police headquarters today. Nothing that the detectives could do would bring out any information. With Quigley at the time of his arrest was George F. Windall of Long Island. Windall declared that he did not know Quigley and only spoke to him casually as they were leaving the train. Both are being held for further investigation.

The police were at the station looking for a St. Louis man wanted for raising money orders and Quigley answered this man's description. When they found the securities at police headquarters they were overwhelmed with surprise.

Atlantic City Fire Scare.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Atlantic City, N. J., April 22.—Last night visitors had a bad scare today when flames were discovered shooting out from beneath the Hotel Pitney, near the beach on South New York avenue. There was a stampede of guests from surrounding hotels and apartment houses. Prompt work of the firemen held the blaze to the lower floors of the Pitney.

Big Packing Plant Sold.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Buffalo, April 22.—The plant of the C. Kinck Packing Company, pork and beef packers, was sold today to William A. Morgan, president of the Buffalo Copper and Brass Rolling Mill of Black Rock. It is understood that the consideration was more than $4,000,000. The plant is the third largest of its kind in the country.

"Laws of the Medes and Persians."

Among the ancients, the law of the Medes and Persians was regarded as unalterable and irrevocable, hence the expression has come to mean something permanent. In the Bible the expression is referred to in Daniel 4:15. "Know, O king, that the law of the Medes and Persians is, that no decree nor statute which the king establisheth may be changed."

THE KITCHEN GARDEN.

It Should Yield More Than One Crop of Vegetables.

(Prepared by United States department of agriculture.)

If the garden was not broken in the fall it should be plowed in the spring as soon as the frost is out of the ground. Small areas may be worked with a spade, pushing the blade into its full depth and turning the soil to break up the clods. Heavy soils should never be worked when wet. Overseas gardeners, ready to seize the first warm spell as a favorable opportunity to go out and work the heavy clay soil before it is dry, are not only wasting their energy, but are doing damage to the soil from which it will take years for it to recover. To determine when heavy soils are ready for plowing a handful of earth should be collected from the surface and the fingers tightly closed on it. If the ball of compacted earth is dry enough for cultivation it will fall apart when the hand is opened.

A garden spot near the house is often more desirable than a plot which is in better till, but located at an inconvenient distance. A garden which is near the house will receive many a spare hour of care from adults and children which would otherwise be wasted. Where there is ample room for the selection of a garden site the slope of the land should be carefully considered. A gentle slope toward the south is most desirable for growing early crops, while it is a decided advantage to have the plot protected on the north and northwest by either a hill, a group of buildings or a board fence.

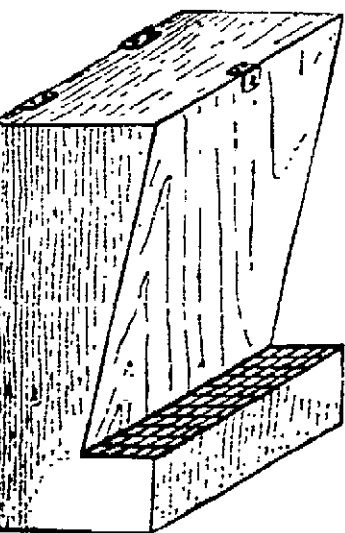

Drainage of the garden is of great importance. The land should have sufficient fall to drain off surplus water during heavy rains and yet not be so steep that the soil will be washed or gullied. The surface should be nearly level so the water will not stand in hollows. Where the natural slope of the land does not provide sufficient natural drainage ditches may be dug or a tile drain put in. This will prevent waste water from the adjoining land from washing over it. Such water may carry weed and grass seed into the garden, which are later culled out with difficulty.

The soil in the average back yard is not only lacking in plant food, but also has been packed until it is hard and unyielding. To loosen up such soil and make it suitable for garden produce requires that careful attention be given to its preparation. After spading the inclosure thoroughly, the upper three inches should be made due with the use of hoe and rake. Stones and rubbish should be removed and clods of dirt broken. The surface should be made even and as level as possible. It may then be marked off for planting in conformity with the general plan of the garden.

Barnyard or stable manure is the best fertilizer because it furnishes both plant food and humus. An application at the rate of from twenty to thirty tons to the acre of well rotted manure is very satisfactory. This should be applied after plowing or working with a spade and distributed evenly over the surface and later worked in with a hoe and rake. On many soils it is advisable to apply commercial fertilizer, especially phosphate, in addition to the manure. An application of 300 to 600 pounds of acid phosphate to the acre is usually sufficient. If additional potash is needed, which is often the case with sandy soils, this may be economically supplied in the form of wood ashes. If the wood ashes are unleached they should be distributed over the garden, using 1,000 pounds to the acre. If they have been wet or leached 2,000 pounds should be used. An application of 100 pounds to the acre of nitrate of soda may be used in the spring to start the plants before the nitrogen in the manure has become available. It should be borne in mind that commercial fertilizers will not yield good results unless the soil is well supplied with humus. Soil or other vegetation which has overgrown a garden spot may be used to advantage.

A Feed Hopper For Chickens.

A feed hopper for chickens can easily be made by sawing the sides of a laundry soap box as indicated. A lid is fastened on the top by hinges, and the feed is poured in at the top. The front slats, which keep the feed all ways sliding down as it is taken out of the opening. The opening is covered with chicken wire to keep the fowls from stepping into the feed and fouling it.—Popular Science Monthly.

Pruning Trees.

Pruning may be done in the orchard and on shade trees now on warm days, when there is no frost in the branches. Paint all wounds more than one inch in diameter.

Worth While Quotations.

"Noble disappointment, noble self-denial are not to be admired, not even to be pardoned, if they bring bitterness, gentleness and cheerfulness, these come before all morality; they are the perfect duties."—Robert Louis Stevenson.

KAISER TO DRAFT GERMANY'S REPLY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, April 22.—Germany's reply to America's ultimatum on submarine warfare will be drafted by Emperor William and Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg at the Kaiser's headquarters at Mezières, in northern France. In a chateau at Mezières the Kaiser has been staying with his staff ever since the attack on Verdun was launched and there he and the chancellor held their first conference on the American note yesterday.

Record of U. Boats' Work.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, April 22.—The German Admiralty today sent to the American government of the foreign office a voluminous report on the accomplishments of German submarines during the war. The report shows every ship attacked and the result. The information given by the Admiralty will undoubtedly have great weight with the foreign office in determining the reply to be sent next week to the American government's latest note.

SAVED BY A HYMN.

Without Knowing It the Sentry Disarmed His Opponents.

In his book "Why Men Pray" Dr. Charles Lewis Slattery tells one of Henry Drummond's old stories to illustrate his point that prayer produces a sense of human fellowship.

"One Sunday night on an ocean steamer a man spoke of a hymn which had just been sung as having for him peculiarly sacred associations. He was in the Confederate army in the American war between the states and was ordered at one time to lonely sentry duty. As the night wore on he felt his danger, and to keep up his courage he began to sing—

Jesus, lover of my soul, and after uttering the great prayer of this hymn he was comforted and felt quite safe.

"A strange expression came over the face of a fellow passenger on the ship. 'I,' he said, 'was in the Union army that night and had been sent out with a party of scouts. We saw a solitary sentry, and my men had their rifles leveled to fire, but just then we heard the clear notes ringing out in the stillness—

Cover my defenseless head
With the shadow of thy wing, and I said: 'Boys, lower your rifles. We'll go home!'

Crossing the Dough.
"When I was a boy in South York-shire," says a correspondent of an English journal, "where most wives baked their own bread, the last thing before putting a 'kneading' as the finished dough was termed, down by the fire to 'rise' was the two slashing cuts with a knife that made a cross. Then a piece of muslin was thrown over the top of the bowl. Where one wife would admit that the cross was 'to let the witch out,' another would say it was 'to help the dough to rise,' and a third would answer that it was 'just a fashion an' nowt else.' But if some trouble seeking boy had meddled with the cross and the baking turned out had very seldom did the dough maker fail to put the blame on him for 'spoiling in the cross.'"

No Proposals.
"But I don't love you, Ingomar."
"In these days there is no reason for not being engaged to a man."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Order of the Golden Fleece.

The Order of the Golden Fleece was instituted by Philip the Good, duke of Burgundy, in 1429, on account of it is said, of the profit he made in the wool trade. The original number of knights was thirty-one. At the end of the collar was hung a golden fleece. The order finally became common to all the princes of the house of Austria and now belongs to both Austria and Spain. In fact, its membership includes royal personages from many lands, and the order is practically as wide as royalty itself.—New York American.

"Peddler's Acre."

Lambeth "old" church has numerous historic monuments, and in one of the windows is the full length figure of a peddler with his pack, staff and dog. This is supposed to represent the unknown person who presented "Peddler's acre" to the parish upon condition that his portrait and that of his beloved canine companion should be preserved in the church and that his dog should be given a grave in consecrated ground.—London Saturday Review.

Shirts Made to Measure For Well Dressed Men!

Just as finger prints differ, so do physiques. I believe that I can demonstrate to your satisfaction that there's a real and apparent difference between Shirts I tailor to your measure and other kinds, and that this difference is one of values as well as styles. And do not take it for granted that Shirts specially made to your order mean added price if I make them.

I have superb new lines of Silks, Madras, Percales and other weaves from which to choose, and I can guarantee to make you Shirts that will look, fit and wear better than any you have ever worn. I can pleasantly surprise you as regards the price question.

KINGSTON, N. Y., APRIL 22, 1916.

About the easiest path to fame nowadays is to claim the discovery of a substitute for gasoline. The next step is to ascertain from a lawyer the fact that letters patent on the formula cannot protect the inventor against other persons who may buy the required chemicals and make the mixture for their own use. Then the claimant for the discovery, after thus demonstrating the utter impossibility of adequate reward, retires into a discarded silence while the world of motorists proceeds to make a path to his door in vain. At least that is a fair summary of discoveries reported from Brooklyn and from New Windsor. Both these alleged inventors are now in the clamshell stages of their respective experiences. Figuratively, Henry Ford waits hat in hand and John D. Rockefeller suffers in an agony of apprehension but the price for gasoline holds firm and the world of motorists is calm, waiting to be shown. The enormous value of any practical substitute, subject to unrestricted use of consumers, staggers the imagination. Alchemists of old struggled to transmute base metals into gold, but their success would have meant merely the overturning of a standard of value. A cheap substitute for gasoline would on the other hand, be the greatest economic boon mankind has known since James Watt's tea kettle found practical expression in the steam engine.

Few news stories possess the quality of appearing to be both reasonable and unreasonable, but that peculiar quality is possessed by the news from Pocantico Hills that John D. Rockefeller after spending $20,000 for an artificial ice plant on his estate there has decided to abandon its use because of the high cost of operating it. Mr. Rockefeller's life-long policy has been to look after the pennies, leaving the dollars to care of themselves, and times almost without number he has shut down on what he considered extravagances, but because they were extravagances. But when he wants anything very much Mr. Rockefeller has not allowed price to stand in the way of his accomplishment. If he possessed a deep-seated idea that artificial ice instead of natural ice was either beneficial or needed at Pocantico Hills, or if he really wanted it, the question of cost would cut no figure in his considerations. So, considering the news in the light of one aspect of Mr. Rockefeller's nature, the story seems reasonable, but when viewed in the light of another side of the man it appears unreasonable. The operation of the plant for the Pocantico Hills estate needs would cost about $20 a day, while the cost of the same quantity of natural ice is that the plant was required to produce amounts to about $5 a day. The rumor that the Oil King discontinued the ice plant because of the high cost of gasoline is merely the product of a practical joker or the Busy Street Liar, who probably can be found at Pocantico Hills as well as in Kingston.

The moving picture has neither lessened nor exaggerated the horror of war, but by showing actual conditions it has accomplished a forward step in public education. A realization of the truth naturally tends to dispel illusions. War does not consist mainly of valorous deeds by unscathed heroes. The European nations now fighting have all sent to America moving picture films showing war scenes. Italy being the last of the belligerent powers to furnish them to the United States, Henry Ford and other pacifists complain that "The Battle Cry of Peace" depicts only an imaginary scene intended solely to raise ghostly apparitions whose actual existence is not to be feared. While the picture projections of the film he criticizes have been staged for the camera, all the acting has been duplicated in real life in Europe within twenty months. The pacifists say nothing of the films supplied by the belligerents, and those films do not show scenes of battle except from afar. Generally they present the brighter side of soldier life, with views of the every-day occurrences which do not make history. The moving picture machines are not allowed close to the battle fields, and, if they were allowed there, the probabilities are they would be an-ihilated. We may hold out hands in horror at what we know is transpiring and say that it is like that, we are for peace, but what guarantee have we that conditions may not be forced on us whereby we will be forced to take the defensive. In a state of unpreparedness, such scenes as those shown in "The Battle Cry of Peace" are entirely within the bounds of probability. The law of nature is for the survival of the fittest in a constant battle of the strong against the weak. Until that law is changed nations as well as individuals must prepare to protect their rights.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"The poor out who reports agricultural doings for this paper didn't know, until I told him, that a chicken farm is an eggplant."—Buffalo Express.

Mr. Pessimist—"What is a consulting specialist, anyhow?" Mr. Optimist—"Oh, he's the big doctor that says you are going to die and tells you how to do it properly."—Judge.

"What's your idea of a party leader?" "A party leader," replied Senator Sorghum, "is a man who finds out what the people want." "And then gives it to them?" "No; promises it."—Washington Star.

"Doing anything these days for the uplift of humanity?" "Nothing to speak of," answered the professional reformer. "Then you must indeed be reforming." "I thought the purpose of most reformers was to do something to speak of."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

One on the Judge.

A young man was defending a man accused of housebreaking.

"Your honor, I submit that my client did not break into the house at all. He found the parlor window open, and merely inserted his arm and removed a few trifling articles. Now my client's arm is not himself, and I fail to see how you can punish an individual for an offense committed by one of his limbs."

"That argument," said the judge, "is very well put. Following it logically, I sentence the defendant's arm to one year's imprisonment. He can accompany it or not just as he chooses."

The prisoner smiled, and with the lawyer's assistance unscrewed his cork arm, and leaving it in the dock, he walked out.—New York Herald.

Check.

Senator Tillman was condemning certain extortionate armor-plate contracts.

"These people," he said, "treat the government as the man treated the restaurateur—with almost incredible cheek."

"This man came into restaurant with two young ladies."

"A glass of beer," he said. "Only one—my friends aren't thirsty—and, waiter, could you oblige us with three plates?"

"The plates were duly brought and the man took three sandwiches from his pocket, and the party proceeded to enjoy themselves."

"But the outraged waiter hurried off and told the manager. The manager rushed up to the unworthy guest and said:

"Look here, you, what do you take us for? Ordering one beer and then borrowing our plates to eat your sandwiches from? Why, I never—"

"Who are you?" said the guest, taking a sip of beer and a nibble of sandwich.

"Who am I? I'm the manager."

"The guest frowned.

"Oh, are you?" he said fiercely. "Then you're just the fellow I'm looking for. Why the dickens isn't the orchestra playing?"—Washington Star.

SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF New York, County of Ulster.—The Thirtieth, against Asa F. Smith, unmarried, Elsie M. Hodges, Charles C. Sloane and Margaret M. Sloane, his wife, defendants. Notice of sale.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale made and entered in the above entitled action, bearing date the fifth day of April, one thousand nine hundred and fifteen, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment, do hereby give notice that public auction at the front door of the county courthouse in the city of Kingston, county of Ulster and state of New York, on the 21st day of May, 1916, at twelve o'clock noon, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold and therein described as follows:

All that certain lot or tract of land situated in the village of the Pines, town of Pine Hill, town of Shandaken, county of Ulster and state of New York, which said tract of land was formerly (in 1874) part of a great lot numbered 8 of a certain patent later (1874) known as parts of lot numbers 87-88 and the west half of lot number 89 in the Bannard Lansett tract and which aforesaid tract of land and hereby conveyed is bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a stake and stone on the west side of a small stream, corner of a tree, and running thence south fifty degrees east twelve hundred and fifty feet to the northwesterly corner of a plot of three acres, hereinafter conveyed, by said Smith to Charles C. Sloane; thence running thence southwesterly at right angles with said last mentioned line and along said Sloane's southwesterly boundary two hundred and eighty feet, eight and one-half inches; thence southwesterly at right angles with said last mentioned line, and along said Sloane's southwesterly boundary six hundred and twenty-six feet one and one-half inches; thence northwesterly at right angles with said last mentioned line, and along said Sloane's northwesterly boundary two hundred and eighty feet, eight and one-half inches to the northwesterly boundary line of a certain tract of land hereinafter conveyed, thence along said northwesterly boundary line thirteen hundred forty-one feet four and one-half inches to a heap of stones around a small building, thence along said northwesterly boundary line eighteen chains and fifty links to a heap of stones; thence north fifty-five degrees west fifty chains to a yellow birch tree, near the beginning of a road, and thence down the same, as it runs and winds and turns northeast twenty-two chains ten links to a pile of logs, beginning, containing ninety-six and one-quarter acres more or less. Being (except said three acres thereof conveyed to said Sloane) the same as the certain tract of land hereinafter conveyed to said Sloane by deed dated September 24, 1884, recorded in Ulster county clerk's office in Liber 218 of deeds at page 250 on September 26, 1884.

Also all the right, which was there conveyed to said Smith to pipe and draw water from other adjacent lands then belonging to the estate of said dead of September 24, 1884.

Excepting, however, from the premises above described all the two lots or acres of land situated at Grovesmont or Belle Air Mountain south of the village of Pine Hill, in the town of Shandaken, county of Ulster, and state of New York, severally bounded and described as follows:

One beginning at the southeasterly corner boundary of the land of Charles C. Sloane at Grovesmont and running thence southwesterly in a straight line along said Sloane's southern boundary line two hundred and eighty feet, eight and one-half inches to the southeasterly corner of said Sloane's land; thence easterly and southerly in a true curve of three hundred and sixty feet radius, about five hundred feet to the pole, twenty-five feet southwesterly in a straight line (parallel with said Sloane's said southerly line) from the southeasterly corner of the boundary line of the aforesaid "Bannard Lansett Farm" (said curved line being at the nearest point fifty feet from the southwest boundary line of said Robinson Farm) and running along the easterly border of a proposed road to run from Grovesmont avenue to and beyond Fern Spring, as shown on a map thereof made by William B. Peters, surveyor, dated 1896, and in possession of said Smith; and thence northwesterly to its said parallel line seventy-five feet to its said southeasterly corner, and running along the easterly boundary line of said Robinson Farm, and thence at right angles with said last mentioned line along said boundary line between said Grovesmont and "Robinson Farm" about four hundred and forty-two feet to the place of beginning.

Containing about one acre of land with right of way to said Bannard and his heirs and household over said proposed road when finished and also over Grovesmont avenue to and along the northerly side of said Sloane's land, and thence along the through an opening in the wall, on to said "Robinson Farm."

The other of said two lots beginning at point on the southeasterly boundary line of said Grovesmont nine hundred and fifty feet southwesterly from the southeasterly corner boundary of said Grovesmont and running thence northwesterly at right angles with said boundary line two hundred and eighty feet, eight and one-half inches; thence southerly at right angles with said last mentioned line two hundred eight feet and eight and one-half inches; thence southerly along said boundary line two hundred eight feet eight and one-half inches to the place of beginning.

Containing one acre with one spring of water under or near two large yellow birch trees not far from the center thereof. The premises above described and sought to be foreclosed herein are subject to the following easement contained in Liber 261 of conveyances page 165 with perpetual right to place and maintain one water pipe from said spring hereby conveyed by one reasonably direct route across, over, through or under said premises, and if it be near the site of certain proposed building of said party of the second part to the aforesaid release and the perpetual right to such party, its heirs, assigns, agents, servants, employees, grantees, and the occupants of the premises of the said party to enter upon the property covered by aforesaid mortgage sought to be foreclosed herein, to replace or repair such pipe or to perform any necessary work in and about said pipe and the premises over which it shall run for such maintenance.

The premises covered by the mortgage sought to be foreclosed herein are also subject to the Miller Iron Company's claim, which was as recorded in the Ulster county clerk's office so far as said right of way may affect it at all, said premises of 257 part thereof.

Expert Advice For the Automobile OwnerQueries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

There is a knock in the engine of my car, which has been run only about 300 miles. This knock takes place when the car is running slowly on direct or when the throttle is being opened and the car picking up. It seems to occur about every two revolutions of the crank shaft. Can you tell me what is the matter and the remedy?

From the information you give the motor is evidently suffering from a connecting rod knock. It is impossible to say whether the knock is due to side play or bearing looseness. Another possibility is that the motor has a piston slap which occurs at every explosion stroke. It sometimes happens that practically all the bearing of a piston is taken upon one ring. The result is that the piston oscillates about this ring, which gives rise to a slap audible every two revolutions. Since you have had the car such a short time you can no doubt get it repaired by the manufacturer.

How can one tell whether the height of level in the splash system is correct?

The oil level in a splash system can generally be determined by a riser gauge mounted on one side of the crank case. The level in the troughs is generally governed automatically, and if the oil is of sufficient depth in the pan to give a feed to the pump the oil in the troughs will be correct. If the motor smokes it is sometimes an indication that the level is too high in the crank case; but, as a rule, the splash level is worked out in the factory and need not be touched by the driver.

My motor misses when idling and when driving on high in different cylinders at less than twelve miles per hour, causing a very bad jerky motion, apparently in the rear universal. Have had the valves ground recently and there is fairly even compression. The ignition seems to be all right and no change in the carburetor seems to help it. There are apparently no air leaks and the car operates well when the motor has to pull. Can you tell me what is the matter?

The motor missing may be due to loose connections in ignition wiring, broken conductors, breaker point burned out, dirty or improperly adjusted; valves not seating properly, dirt or water in gasoline, spark plug points improperly adjusted or not set deeply enough in the valve caps, weak battery, valve spring weak or broken, mixture too rich or too lean, particles of carbon under the valves, defective spark plugs due to cracked porcelain or other causes, air leaks around the intake manifold, valve stem seals, valve caps, spark plugs or petcocks; valve lifts improperly adjusted and many other minor causes. A good order of procedure would be to take the simplest points of the above list and go through those, checking them off, and then go into the more complicated causes.

The distributor contact should be carefully examined to see that good contact is being made and especially that all the contacts are clean. In case the valves are not seating properly and the valves have been reground lately examine the valve seat in the cylinder to see if it has become deeply pitted. It is sometimes necessary to take a light cut off the valve seat in the cylinder before proper seating can be secured.

Can you give me some reasons as to the cause of my motor overheating very quickly? I have to continually fill the radiator with water.

Your loss of water is due to evaporation, caused by the motor overheating. Possibly the cylinders are heavily carbonized. This carbon, forming a coat on the inner walls of the cylinders, prevents the proper cooling of the motor by the water. The hose connections between radiator and motor may be clogged with dirt or possibly the propeller is loose on the shaft. If so the water will not circulate and an overheated motor is the result. Drive with your spark advanced as much as possible. It will help to keep your motor cool and give you additional power.

I am troubled with explosions in the muffler of my car. Have ground in the valves and have tried adjusting the carburetor and valves without effect. I get the explosion whenever I cut down the gas and particularly in going down hill. Am using an exhaust horn. Would this have any effect upon it?

The only reason for getting an explosion in the muffler is that an unburned charge has found its way into this part of the car. This means that the cylinders are not firing regularly and consequently that there is trouble with the functioning in either the carburetor or ignition. It would be well to examine the spark plug points and see if they are not too far apart and also to adjust the carburetor so that the motor fires regularly on all four cylinders. The exhaust horn has nothing whatever to do with the muffler explosions, which are due to the fact that an unburned charge escapes into the muffler, to be followed by a hot exhaust, which explodes the unburned charge in the muffler.

Depth of Despair.

There is no despair so absolute as that which comes with the first moments of our first great sorrow, when we have not yet known what it is to have suffered and be healed, to have despaired and to have recovered hope.

—George Eliot.

Is alcohol a good carbon remover? How should it be used?

Alcohol is a good carbon remover and for the purpose can be used in its denatured state, which is more economical and just as good. You should use five or six tablespoonfuls at one time. The best way of applying is to use a sort of squirt gun composed of a rubber bulb in which there is a long, thin nozzle which can be directed against the walls of the combustion chamber and down on the piston head through a spark plug opening. This can be easily made and should have such a bend in it that it will be easy to insert into the opening for the spark plug and at the same time will be so shaped that the stream of liquid can be directed against any of the likely spots for carbon.

Carbon deposits are likely to accumulate in pockets and recesses of the cylinders and also on the piston heads. Sometimes on motors which have been allowed to go for a long time without having the carbon removed it is deposited in a conical shaped mass on the head of the piston, and very often the tip of the cone becomes incandescent and serves to preignite the incoming charge, thus giving rise to the so called carbon knock. Other places for carbon cones to form are in the top of the combustion chamber and in the recesses above the valve ports. The ports themselves, which are swept by the incoming and outgoing gases, are most often quite free from any but a soft deposit.

In using denatured alcohol some people mix it half and half with kerosene. Together they form a solvent of the resinous material, which acts as a binder for the particles of carbon, which in themselves are incapable of cohesion. When this binding material is dissolved the carbon forms into its natural flakes or scales and can be easily removed. Sometimes after the carbon has been loosened it is necessary to blow out the cylinders so as to remove the carbon flakes and prevent them from again solidifying and becoming a hard carbon deposit. It is a good idea to clean one cylinder at a time and then run the motor afterward with the petcock of the clean cylinder open. This blows out the flakes of carbon which have accumulated. Due to the action of the solvent upon the resinous binding material, and leaves the cylinder clean. Another method which has been used successfully in introducing either denatured alcohol or kerosene into the cylinders is to feed it into the air intake of the carburetor while the motor is running. One motor will have to be running at quite high speed when this is done, as it will stall as soon as it starts to sputter when the rich kerosene mixture begins to be drawn into the cylinders. The suction of the motor draws the kerosene into the cylinders. There is some debate, however, as to whether or not this method is actually as good as the introduction of the liquid into the cylinder itself when the motor is not running.

Cleaning a cylinder with alcohol has its best effects immediately after the motor has come in from a trip and is still warm. At this time a portion of the liquid injected into the cylinders is vaporized, and the vapor of kerosene or denatured alcohol is an effective solvent of the carbon binding material. The best way of carrying through the work would be to lift the hood as soon as the motor comes in from a run and then turn the crank until two of the cylinders are on top center with all valves closed. When this is done these two cylinders should be treated with the liquid, which is squirted in through the improvised gun. The motor is then left standing overnight with the alcohol in the combustion chambers of the two cylinders treated. The two remaining cylinders, if it is a four, are treated in the same manner at the next opportunity. Some people inject about a teaspoonful of kerosene or denatured alcohol into the priming cup after each trip.

In which type of axle is the wheel most likely to come off in case of accident or breakage? Will the wheel come off if the axle is broken on a three-quarter floating?

In the semifloating axle, should the shaft break in the middle, the wheel will come off in a short time, while in the floating it will take a longer period. In a three-quarters floating axle the wheel is more likely to come off than in a floating, because the shaft is rigidly attached to the wheel hub.

Is the power of a gasoline motor usually rated on the speed of piston travel or revolutions of crank shaft?

The standard rating is based on a piston speed of 1,000 feet per minute.

In the average life of a motor how many times must carbon be burned out?

This will depend entirely upon the condition of the motor. Some motors with leaky rings become so full of carbon after three or four hundred miles that they start to pound and pre-ignite to such an extent that they cannot be efficiently operated.

HEAVY RAINS ARE CAUSE OF FLOODS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Rochester, April 22.—Heavy rains during the last 24 hours have caused the Genesee river to rise rapidly and reports from Genesee and other towns up the valley indicate that the water is gradually creeping up to the same high level reached a few weeks ago when considerable damage was caused.

The water has already overflowed into the lowlands, being five feet deep at some points in Genesee. There has been a rapid rise in the river here and more damage is looked for by houses in the business district.

SENIORITY RULES TO GO BY BOARD

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, April 22.—The picking of the committee to represent the senate in the coming conference to adjust its differences with the house on the army bill has placed a knotty problem before preparedness leaders.

Under the carefully observed rule of seniority, Senator Chamberlain, chairman, Senator Hitchcock, of Nebraska, and Senator Dupont, of Delaware, all of the military affairs committee, would be selected as the conferees. The senate, however, intends to make a strong fight for retention of the standing army of 250,000 men. Senator Hitchcock was strongly opposed even to the military affairs committee and made a dissenting report. Leaders have their way, the seniority rule will be broken for the first time in years and a "big army" man placed on the conference committee in Hitchcock's place.

Quick Returns

That is what every man or woman in the business world is after—quick returns on their investments and that is the kind of returns the Want Ads make, for they work like chain lightning and are efficient as well.

Then, as to the amount of the return, why it is simply unbelievable to the uninitiated. You spend but a few cents for the Want Ad and in return, you make many dollars and often are started on the road to a fortune.

Want Ad opportunities should not be neglected, for they have proved their value time and again, as is witnessed by the thousands of patrons they have daily.

Miss Hitty's Discovery

A Story of the "Movies"

By CLARISSA MACKIE

In the village of Edgewood were many straggled persons. To visit that town and become acquainted with the inhabitants was like going back a century, when the theater, playing cards and all manner of amusements were considered wicked. There is a story of a man who paved the way for the enjoyment of the game of billiards in the God fearing town of Philadelphia during the early part of the last century. He said that marbles were not considered wicked—why billiards? Marbles were stone, while billiard balls were ivory. Marbles were shot by the hand, billiard balls by a stick. Marbles were played on the sidewalk out of doors, while billiards were played on a level bed in the house. Where in lay the difference?

The good people of the Quaker City, whose children could not be prevented from playing marbles, concluded after this discovery had been made that billiards were no more sinful and withdrew their opposition, and thereafter billiards became fashionable.

It was the fate of Miss Hitty to make a similar discovery in Edgewood. Miss Hitty met Dick Hedges at a church social. Had she not met him at a church social she would probably never have met him at all, for dancing was frowned upon in Edgewood, and without dancing young people's parties are considered dull. The consequence was that no one caring to go to the trouble of getting up a party that was sure to be dull, parties were not given.

But it would have made no difference where these two happened to meet, for at once both recognized that they were made for each other, and after that they provided their own places of meeting, and very soon they were engaged. Unfortunately Hedges was poor and but one opening appeared for him; that was a position in an American tea house in China. Dick availed himself of it and tore himself away from his betrothed. Weeks, months, even years, passed, and he did not return.

When the Palace movie theater opened its doors in Edgewood the house of entertainment was looked upon with disapproval by the church members.

At first many of them declined to even penetrate the mysteries beyond the white painted doors and the many posters outside, but gradually one by one the villagers were lured inside until the venture promised to be a profitable one. Even the ministers of the different churches visited the theater from time to time to censor the plays.

It was a harmless diversion.

After Miss Hitty Morton made her important discovery Edgewood took the Palace theater to its heart.

Every one knew that Hitty Morton would have been married long ago if Dick Hedges had ever returned from his long voyage to China. But Dick had never returned, and it was believed that he had died. Que by one his family had died or moved away from Edgewood until there remained only his old sweetheart, Hitty Morton, who lived on Honeyroot road, in a little red cottage near the bay. Some people whispered that Dick had been faithless to Hitty.

The first time Hitty entered the walls of the Palace she was bewildered by the crowd of silent people, the flashing pictures on the screen, the novelty of it all, for she had never been in a theater in all her simple life.

But the screen pictures laid their magic spell upon her, and she became a devotee of the movies. Twice a week as regularly as the program was changed Hitty Morton could be found sitting in the same seat, halfway down the room, her bright eyes eagerly following the stories told by the screen.

Deacon Peddie, who passed the collection plate in church, always scrutinized Hitty's contribution to detect whether or not she was enjoying the semi-weekly amusement at the expense of the church, but invariably Hitty's silver dime would drop into the plate. Perhaps Hitty, the butcher, might have told another story—that Hitty was skimping on her food. She was eating meat only twice a week now instead of three times.

One night in particular the posters were more alluring than ever. There had been a change of program that day, but there was a missionary meeting, and Hitty had postponed her going to the following night. Now she paused in front of the brightly lighted entrance and studied the colored posters. "All For Love." That sounded thrilling, with a rescue at sea. Pictures of the sea always attracted her.

"Visits to Strange Lands." Hitty thrilled with anticipated pleasure, for she dearly loved these travel pictures, giving glimpses of strange lands and strange people, perhaps the countries that Dick Hedges had visited. He used to say that when he got a vessel of his own he would take her with him to the far east. Hitty still lived these voyages in her day dreams.

She glanced up and down the village street.

Yonder was the church. The basement was brightly lighted, for there was to be a missionary barrel packed that night. In Hitty's arms were half a dozen white shirts she had stitched for some unknown missionary in Asia. She was expected to help pack the barrel.

Before her were the staring posters. Hitty glanced once up and down the street, and then disappeared through the swinging doors. She did not know that Mrs. Deacon Peddie, passing on the other side of the street, had glimpsed her backsliding sister and was even now detailing the circumstances to a skeptical group of listeners about the missionary barrel.

Hitty found her accustomed seat, and being rather short in stature she sat down on the bundle of shirts and so did not make a thing all evening. The sweet romance of "All For Love" was slowly rolled off to the sentimental capture of the very young and a few lonely souls like our own Miss Hitty. She sat through it all, her round, sweet little face uplifted to the screen, with a look of wistfulness that a newcomer saw as he sat down nearby.

If any one had been interested it might have been noticed that the bronzed newcomer divided his interest between the pictures and Hitty Morton's face. After awhile the seat beside Hitty became vacant and in the darkened theater the stranger glided across the aisle and occupied it. Hitty never even turned her eyes from the screen; she was accustomed to this change of neighbors.

On the screen appeared the first of the travel pictures, which were Hitty's delight.

A great steamer was sailing from San Francisco for Japan. She felt herself one of that group of travelers hurrying up the gunplank of the great liner.

The scene shifted to the first port of call, Honolulu. Dark eyed maidens with garlands of flowers about their necks and other garlands for sale, queer vehicles, a swift view of a volcano, then aboard the steamer. A glimpse of the social life on board, then the approach to the fairy islands of Japan.

Breathlessly Hitty watched the shifting scenes, fascinated by the oriental sights. She almost thought herself there with Dick, as she had dreamed. While she watched she turned a little more from her engagement finger. Any woman in Edgewood would have told you that it was Hitty Morton's engagement ring.

The man beside her glimpsed the ring, and his face grew pale.

At last the steamer approached the yellow shore line of China. Then she dropped anchor off Wusung, in the mouth of the Yangtze river, and transferred her passengers to the small tugs which were to convey them up the shallow tidal river called Whangpo to the city of Shanghai.

When the picture of the public wharf at Shanghai was thrown upon the screen Hitty leaned forward. She wanted to scream.

There in the crowd of eager faces watching the arriving passengers was a familiar one—the face of Dick Hedges, grown older, perhaps, but Dick Hedges, nevertheless, smooth shaven, with a captain's uniform on his broad shoulders and a gold laced cap on his handsome head.

It was Dick—Dick Hedges, her Dick in faraway Shanghai!

The much maligned moving picture screen had shown her that he was alive!

"Dick! Dick! Oh, Dick!" she whispered sobbingly.

A strong, warm hand covered hers, and the man beside her looked down out of Dick Hedges' eyes. He wore a captain's uniform, and in his other hand was a gold laced cap.

"Dick!" Hitty thought she screamed the word, but it did not leave her lips. "Easy, lass; easy, lass!" he whispered gently, and then while the screen displayed further pictures of these far countries Hitty saw no more. Was not life unrelenting for her a greater romance than could be depicted on a screen? Had not the sea given up its dead?

Dick whispered the meager details of his story. He had been lost at sea and then rescued, and when he had returned to civilization some one from Edgewood had maliciously told him that Hitty Morton had forgotten him and was married to another man.

Only a little while ago had Dick heard that Hitty was still unmarried, and so he had returned to Edgewood to ascertain if she still cared for him. He had dropped into the theater and glimpsed her face. He sat beside her and saw that she wore his ring alone upon her third finger. He had seen her face when his own picture—taken unknown to himself—had leaped out of the crowd upon the wharf in Shanghai. He had heard her murmured words, her unconscious cry of joy at seeing him.

"Then I knew that you still loved me and that I was not too late," he whispered as they followed the crowd outside. "My ship sails from San Francisco on the 21st. Hitty, so we must be married at once so that we can start on our honeymoon voyage. You remember how we planned it, eh?"

Of course Hitty remembered. They walked along in happy conversation, the package of shirts tucked under Dick's free arm.

Mrs. Deacon Peddie and a group of missionary ladies overtook Hitty Morton and brought her to a realization of her sins.

"Hitty Morton! Where are those missionary shirts?" demanded Mrs. Peddie. "We're holding the barrel open till morning so's they can be put in."

Hitty took the package from Dick's grasp, but he snatched it back again. "If these are shirts, men's size," he said genially. "I guess I'm the missionary they'll about fit. I want 'em for my trousers. Hitty and I'm going to be married in a day or so."

Music of the Spheres.

The rising and the setting of the sun clearly prove that this globe is carried round in the space of twenty-four hours in an eternal and never ending circuit and with incredible swiftness. I am not able to say whether the sound caused by the whirling about of so great a mass be excessive and therefore far beyond what our ears can perceive, nor, indeed, whether the resounding of so many stars, all carried on at the same time and revolving in their orbits, may not produce a delightful harmony of incredible sweetness. To us, who are in the interior, the world appears to glide silently along both by day and by night.—Pliny.

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE IS "COMING BACK"

Three Major League Veterans Now With Minor Organizations.

(By ED G. BARROW, President of the International Baseball League.)

The International league is "coming back" this season. Its prospects have not been so bright for a long, long time. The war is over, confidence is restored and the baseball conditions are normal again. Of course, the war caused us some suffering but it won't be long before our organization will be back on the same high plane as before the advent of the "outlaws."

The 1916 make-up of the league will be the same as in the old days—a compact circle made up of the best cities in the East. And so we all are more than hopeful that brighter days have come.

The return to Newark and Baltimore is gratifying. I am confident that before the season is over the fans in both cities will be completely satisfied with the brand of baseball they will get.

James Price, and Fred Tenney, the new owners of the Newark club, have made themselves popular by announcing that they will have no major league connections. Another popular move was the decision to play the games in Newark instead of in Harrison. Jack Dunn always gave Baltimore baseball of major league caliber, and with no opposition there this season he is bound to win the fans back to the support of his Orioles.

Richmond no doubt will make a much better showing in the way of attendance this season. "Billy" Smith is a shrewd and capable manager, and his hustling qualities will make him popular with the fans. I look for the Virginians to have a very successful season all around.

The change to local ownership has stirred things up in Providence, and the fans no doubt will rally to the support of "Billy" Draper, the new owner of the club, who is very popular throughout Rhode Island.

President Chapin of Rochester made a ten-strike when he secured little Tommy Leach to manage the Hustlers. Tommy has always shown that he possesses managerial ability by the way he has gone about building up a team for his new boss. The "midget" undoubtedly will be just as big a favorite in the International league as he was in the big show.

Pat Donovan and his champions should have a banner season in Buffalo, now that they have the field all to themselves there.

The large number of Canadians that have gone to the war front has made baseball conditions in Toronto and Montreal a little uncertain. However, the people of Canada are great lovers of outdoor sports, and they no doubt will patronize the ball games liberally. Baseball is about the only form of outdoor amusement left in Canada that has not been seriously affected by the European war. Joe Birmingham at Toronto and Dan Howley at Montreal, are both clever and experienced managers, and are backed by real sportsmen, who have shown their liberality and gameness on many occasions in the past.

All things considered, the outlook for the International league is very encouraging.

HANK GOWDY IS ONE OF "13"

Boston Backstop Got His Start in Major League With Giants—Lasted Less Than a Year.

Hank Gowdy, the Boston backstop, got his major league start with the New York Giants on September 13, 1910, when he covered first base in a game in which the Pirates opposed the McGraw clan. Gowdy's record in the field was ten putouts, one assist and one error. At the bat he didn't get a hit in three times up, the delivery of "Babe" Adams being too batting for the future star of the Beaneaters.

Gowdy was bought by the Giants from the Dallas club of the Texas league, and had previously played with Lancaster, in the Ohio State league. Hank stuck with the Giants less than a year, and in July, 1911, McGraw swapped him to the Braves for Charley Herron. His work at the initial bag didn't make much of an impression on Stallings, and he shipped him off to Buffalo, where he was put behind the bat, and soon became the star backstop of the international circuit. Hank was recalled to the Boston club at the close of the international season.

Starting a Row. "I say, ma," queried little Jimmy, looking up from his picture book. "I descended from monkeys?"

"Not on my side of the house, Jimmy," replied Mrs. Gowler, with much emphasis.—Stray Stories.

BASEBALL STORIES

The White Sox will not wear dark blue road uniforms this year.

Ray Chapman declares the Indians have one of the best infields in the game.

Leo Grim of Brooklyn, N. Y., is to be president of the new Lancaster club of the Atlantic league.

Otto Jordan, member of Campan's Bing 1902 team, has retired from baseball and is selling automobiles.

Pitcher Harry Harper of the Senators, has shown wonderful improvement since rounding into form.

It is Manager Fohl's intention to carry only two utility infielders and but one extra outfielder this season.

Mike O'Neill, the hustling manager of the Syracuse team of the New York State league, now has seven pitchers on his staff.

Billy Hamilton seems to have the Worcester fans with him. He says he plans to cut out the groucho stuff, once his specialty.

Johnny Lavan, who played shortstop for the Browns for several years, is apt to beat out Ernie Johnson, who went to the Browns from the Feds.

"Honus" Wagner during his entire career has never been a holdout. When a guy becomes so proficient that he writes his own contracts it's not necessary to hold out.

Roger Bresnahan thinks he cannot operate a team successfully with only 16 players and he has started a move to have the American association team limit increased to 17.

Most ball players in the big leagues are superstitious. Jack Fournier feels he is losing a base hit when he passes a cripple without giving him something. The big Frenchman loves his base hits, which is a good thing for the cripples.

Shrill Voices. Mrs. Crimmonbeak—it is said that the shrill voice of the peacock is heard a change of weather is probable. Mr. Crimmonbeak—Well, I know another shrill voice that denotes a storm is right.—Yonkers Statesman.

SHINTO PRIESTS' PROCESSION

PREPARING FOR NATIONAL MEMORIAL TO LATE JAPANESE EMPEROR.

This photograph shows a procession of Shinto priests marching through the grounds where the national memorial to the late Emperor to Japan is to be erected, for the purpose of driving away evil spirits. After the grounds had been cleaned and blessed, the wood to be used in the construction work was formally consecrated by the priests. The ceremonial was marked by many unique scenes of weird Oriental splendor, and was witnessed by thousands of Japanese subjects.

READY FOR FIRST GAME OF SEASON

Newly Organized Kingston Baseball Team Opens Tomorrow With Mercury Club at McVey's Field.

Harry Schineck, former star pitcher of Cornell, has organized a baseball team to be known as the "Kingstons" and the first game of the season will be played on Sunday afternoon at McVey's Field on Delaware avenue, when it will cross bats with the Mercury Club of Newburgh. A fast game is looked forward to by the fans. The game will be called at 3 o'clock.

The new team promises to be one of the fastest amateur teams along the river and a number of well-known players have been signed. The new team will play at the Kingston's are: Gardner, Schineck and Cronin, pitchers; Clark and Snyder, first base; Morgan, second base; Mitty, third base; Lough, fourth base; and left field. Right field, 1st and left field, 2nd.

Single Tickets For Symphony.

The sale of single tickets for the Symphony concert to be given on Tuesday evening, March 21, and which interest has been shown in this concert, as was anticipated. When planning how to spend the Easter vacation, nothing more enjoyable could be imagined than the Symphony concert on Tuesday. In the afternoon all the school boys and girls may enjoy all the beautiful music for the small sum of ten cents, just what they pay for a moving picture show, and in the evening the regular concert will take place, both of them being given at the arena house. A finer and more artistic symphony program could not be prepared by any orchestra than that to be given on Tuesday by our orchestra of between fifty and sixty musicians.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, April 22.—John K. Tener advances the opinion that the National League shortstops are in a class by themselves.

"Individually—or collectively—the National Leaguers are far beyond anything in the American," said the old league executive. "But that isn't anything really new. The National always have been superior to the American in the shortstop end of the game."

"The American League hasn't a man in Bancroft's class as a leader. He appeals to me as one of the greatest shortstops that the game has produced. And he hasn't reached his crest yet. Then there's Naranville, of the Braves, Herzog, the Reds, Fletcher of the Giants, Wagner, of the Pirates and O'Mara, of the Dodgers."

Compare those men with the American Leaguers—and what is the answer?"

"But, I'll admit this frankly: the American League outfielders surely are better than those in the National. The collection of gardeners in the American is the grandest in the history of the game."

Harry Payne Whitney's unbeaten Regret will probably be the favorite in the big Kentucky Handicap which will be run at Douglas Park, (Ky.) on May 30.

The speedy filly, which won the Kentucky Derby last year, is being groomed especially for the $15,000 purse race next month. Just now she looms up as the class of the field. Of course, she will be pitted against the fastest youngsters in the racing game, but outside of Walter Blossom, the great Kentucky filly, she ranks as the peer of her rivals for the first place honors.

Walter Blossom, however, may force Regret to her absolute limit. The Bluegrass whirlwind is in perfect condition and her speed is on the increase. She is game to the core, has wonderful endurance powers, breaks fast and is a wizard in the stretch.

Should Regret romp home a winner in the Derby, it is likely that she will be retired at once to the stud, with the prestige of having won the two blue ribbon Kentucky events.

Here's a Peculiar Situation.
Rupert Mills and Pat Powers are having a grand little argument.

Rupert is a youthful ball player, who was signed up last fall to play for the 1916 Newark Federals. Since then the Feds went out of business, Mills's contract called for $3,000 for 1916.

After the dove of peace had settled upon the baseball world, Powers acting as Harry Sinclair's agent, tried to settle with Mills. He offered Mills $500 to tear up the contract, and agreed to get him a job in one of the smaller minor leagues.

Mills balked. He demanded at least $2,400. And then Powers is reported to have said that if Mills would "quit" and go to the States upon the fulfillment of his contract, Mills would have to report each day at the deserted Federal League park.

If Powers goes through with his contract, Mills will have to be at the park each day at 10 a. m., remain until noon, get back at 2 p. m. and linger until 6 p. m.

That's what Mills will have to do seven days a week, over a stretch of 22 weeks, rain or shine. And Powers figures that the loneliness of the job soon will make Mills "open to reason."

BRANCH.

Branch, April 22.—Mrs. Matthews, mother of Mrs. Oscar Satterlee, passed away Thursday, April 20, at 6 a. m. The remains were taken to Mt. Pleasant Friday.

The lineup of the Garrisons will be: Pitcher, Sabloff; catcher, Salzmann; first base, Downs; short stop, Hummel; second base, Smith; third base, Freer; center field, Netter; left field, Leach; right field, Van Keuren. The All Stars' lineup will be: Pitcher, Harlow; catcher, McCall; shortstop, Rourke; second base, Mooney; first base, Mexham; left field, Cism; right field, J. Rourke; center field, Kierman; third base, Boyd. Clare will umpire.

Kingston Was Very Peaceful.

Kingston and its residents spent a very peaceful night as was shown by the fact that this morning not even a "plain drunk" was arraigned in recorder's court and Recorder Lang found no cases on his docket when he opened court today.
